

Queen's Learning Commons Workshops, 2005-2006

The Queen's Learning Commons offers a wide variety of learning opportunities for students and faculty. Workshops can be created on request for specific departments, faculties and residences.

For first year students

- Making the leap from high school to university
- How to write your first university essay
- Grammar workshop and library research for English students
- Library research and academic writing for students of Sociology
- Library research for Politics and History
- Navigating the Library website and searching for journal articles

For undergraduate students

- Navigating the Library website and searching for journal articles
- Effective oral presentations
- Learning from lectures, learning with style, learning from textbooks
- Time management/procrastination
- Exam preparation – study tips, essay and short answers, multiple choice, exam anxiety
- Writing for the media
- Journalistic editing
- Academic writing for Mathematics, Canadian Studies, Mining Engineering and Applied Science
- Research writing (a workshop offered collaboratively by the Writing Centre, the Library and Learning Strategies Development)
- Library research for Politics, English, History, Business, Film Studies and Psychology

For graduate students, teaching assistants and faculty

- Library research for Policy Studies, English, French, German, Physical Health and Education
- Navigating the Library website and searching for journal articles
- Thesis writing – School of Industrial Relations
- Assisting undergraduates with writing
- Academic writing for the Faculty of Law
- Inside Scoop: Resources at the Library

What's the result?

- Better papers
- Better research
- Better presentations
- Better exams
- Better students!

The Queen's Learning Commons is a partnership between Queen's University Library, IT Services, Learning Strategies Development, Special Readers' Services and the Writing Centre. For further information, please contact Nathalie Soini, Learning Commons Coordinator: soinin@post.queensu.ca, 613-533-6000 x75566.

